

SURE, BILL ROTHMANN'D LIKE MISS HALEY SUPPRESSED

And He'd Like to Turn the Teachers' Pension Fund Over to a Gang of School Board Politicians, Too.

Bill Rothmann, chairman of the school board finance committee, is all het up because Margaret Haley jumped on him about that teachers' pension bill.

And so Bill Rothmann says the Chicago Teachers' Federation has a pernicious influence on the public schools, and should be suppressed. He says the organization is dominated by Margaret Haley.

Not surprising at all that some folks should want Margaret Haley and the Teachers' Federation suppressed. It was under Margaret's efficient leadership, as we remember it, that Chicago school teachers made some rich tax-dodgers pay their taxes so the school teachers could get living wages.

And if it wasn't for that teachers' organization, and Margaret Haley, Chicago teachers today would be about as well off as the girl clerks in the department stores, owned by some of our most prominent slave-drivers and tax-dodgers.

The present trustees of the pension fund consist of the secretary and two members of the board, and six members elected by the teachers. The bill favored by Rothmann wants to change that so the pension fund trustees will consist of four members of the board of education, the superintendent of schools and the chairman of the finance committee and four members of the active teaching force.

As it stands now, the teachers control by a vote of 6 to 3. Under the proposed law the politicians on the school board would control the fund by a vote of 6 to 4.

Margaret Haley is right. Bill Rothmann is wrong. The teachers are foolish if they let the politicians get control of the trustees of the pension fund.
